

What does a patent protect?

Patent protection means that the invention cannot be manufactured, used, distributed or sold without the authorization of the right holder. Compliance with industrial property rights are enforced in courts.